

STINKINK.COM BACKS BRIDGNORTH CHILDREN'S FESTIVAL

Organisers of the Bridgnorth Children's Festival have announced that local company Stinkyink.Com based at Alveley has become a major partner with them.

Stinkyinl.Com has agreed to help finance the production of the Activity Trail Cards that will be available at the event on Sunday 28th August (August Bank Holiday Sunday) and which will guide those attending to the various Activity Zones at venues in and around Bridgnorth High Street and the surrounding area.

Announcing the partnership Stephen Derges, Chairman of the Children's Festival said,

"We're absolutely delighted that Stinkyink.Com has come on board with us this year.

We've always tried to make this a local Festival by using performers and suppliers who are linked into the Bridgnorth and area community. Stinkyink.Com is one of a number of local businesses who have helped us fund the Children's Festival and to have their support this year is a real bonus. Their involvement will help us continue with our policy of providing the best entertainment we can offer at the lowest possible cost to those attending."

John Sollars, Managing Director of Stinkyink.Com, also commented,

"Having started Stinkyink.Com from scratch back in 2002 we have built a business that not only provides employment for local people but which has become the UK's largest web-only retailer selling manufacturers' and compatible third party ink and toner cartridges for every make and model of printing device.

As a company we understand the importance of being involved in our community and where we can we like to support successful local events. Many of our customers are local people and to see us involved with such a great event as the Bridgnorth Children Festival cements that relationship."

Stephen Derges agrees,

"I'm a Stinkyink.Com customer myself and wherever I can I like to use a local company. Having a very efficient and price-competitive toner and ink supplier is a great benefit to the local economy and I hope that people attending the Children's Festival will check out Stinkyink.Com's website (there are links on our website to them).

And we hope this will be a successful partnership for both the Children's Festival and Stinkyink.Com."

The various Activity Zones around the town, linked by an Activities Trail sponsored by Stinkyink.Com, will provide a host of activities and entertainment. The full Festival Wristband enabling access to all Zones will cost £5 for the first child in a family and £3 for subsequent children. Alternatively entry to a single Zone costs just £2 per child.

- Fun Zone: around St. Leonard’s Close and the High Street with large scale inflatables and bouncy castles; climbing wall and other attractions + the all important Refreshment area
- Sports Zone: based at the Leisure Centre with afternoon fun swimming sessions from 1:00-4:00pm; marital arts; table tennis, football and other activities
- Arts Zone: at Castle Hall with art and craft, pottery, digital art and other workshops + Whack It-Smack It junk music workshop and hands-on animal experiences and the ever popular facepainting and airbrush tattoos
- Under 5’s Zone: based at Bridgnorth Baptist Church with a range of soft toy play activities and indoor games for the younger members of the family together with their own bouncy castle

In addition, there will be roaming storytellers, magicians, circus performers and celebrity appearances by Bart Simpson plus Bridgnorth’s very own unique and zany children’s performer Disco Daddy will be hosting a Disco at the Castle Hall at 5:00pm as the Festival closes.

More details about other activities are on the Children’s Festival website – www.childrens-festival.co.uk. Wristbands will also be available via the Tourist Information Centre in Listley Street shortly or can be purchased on the day at the Children’s Festival marquee in the High Street.
